By P. D.

In Alabama (our neighbor who has attempted to attain total assdom before we do, and hasn't done bad in their bid) there is an encouraging note in the form of a collection of editorial comments from some ten or eleven newspapers concerning the klan and other extremist groups. The comments are, in my opinion, fair, sound, and pungent and well worth the reading.

They are printed in an eleven page series by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. I am without authority to do this, but if you're interested in getting a copy write to William A. Stewart, Regional Director, 927 Comer Building, Birmingham 3, Ala. Bill Stewart is a nice fellow, and, if available, I fell sure he'll be glad to send you a copy.

As usual, I don't know anything about the National

New York, N. Y.
July 26, 1957

Dear Mr. East:

I wish to take issue with your issue of Thursday, July 18, page two, column one, last sentence of paragraph six. How come you just notice fat women and children? How come you don't notice the slender, beautiful, charming, witty, intelligent, gracious, hospitable, friendly and HONEST women? New York has some of these, too. And if you missed them, where were you?

Sincerely yours,
Alice W. Tripp

Dear Madam:

With reference to your letter of July 26th in which you take issue with me for having noted an over abundance of fat-bottomed ladies, I would like nothing better than to place the blame on the weather.

However, to be perfectly honest about the matter, I must say it was my age. And beside, I was on a Christian expense account.

Yours in dotage,

Since we do not have his permission to print this, we are withholding his name.

Now that we think about it, the piece may not provoke too much thought, but it might provoke . . . we'll settle for either. The Editor.)

A friend handed me an Editorial Reprint of the Petal Paper, and I want to specially commend the editor for his fine article on us and them other Crawfish. It is coming to me rather late but it is worthy of comment.

It has been said that time takes care of all things, but a good shove in the right direction at the right time can work wonders, and a good laugh will sometimes bring people to their senses when all else has failed. I believe it was Dean Swift who said — "It is useless to try to reason a man out of something he was not reasoned into."

As usual, I don't know anything about the National conference of Christians and Jews, seeing as to how I am not a member. However, I like their statement: "—To promote justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews, and to analyze, moderate, and finally eliminate intergroup prejudices which disfigure and distort religious, business, social and political relations, with a view to the establishment of a social order in which the religious ideals of brotherhood and justice shall become the standards of human relationships."

Now, this is some order, you'll admit, but I am of the eternal hope that such an undertaking is possible. By their sponsorship of Brotherhood Week each year the NCCJ is trying to translate into action their hope, as stated in the by-law quoted above. Personally, I hope they are successful . . . and real soon, too.

I feel there is some hope for Alabama so long as ten or eleven newspapers have the courage to speak out against tinor, violence, and intimidation. And it's good to know that an organization like the NCCJ is in business, too. I wonder how they would get along in the state of Mississippi.

As I recall, Brotherhood Week last year in these parts went over like a lead balloon. As I understand it, the schools are asked to get children to write essays on Brotherhood. I can't prove this, but I suspect that last year the citizens' councils essay contest on "What I like about being a superior WASP was substituted in the place and stead of Brotherhood. (A WASP, incidentally, is a White, Anglo-Saxon Protestant.)

Another thing I wonder about is this: If we had as much cross burning, etc. as they have had in Alabama, what would the newspaper editors in this state do? (I do not mean to imply that we here in the land of Canaan are doing better . . . just a little different in our approach to assdom, that's all.)

Would ten, eleven, or perhaps one newspaper speak out if we had nn Autherine Lucy situation? How many ministers would condemn from their pulpits such mob action?

I have said many, many times that we in Mississippi are following a minority on the lunitic fringe to be heard in and above the great voices of decency which I know to be present. Too, I have said a number of times that a half-dozen polecats make for enough stink that two million citizens will stay indoors. Proof of it is seen everyday in the state.

THE ASSAULT ON THE NAACP — The right of freedom of assembly and freedom of association is guaranteed by the U. S. Constitution. The men who founded this nation reduced those guarantees to writing in the First Amendment, which has come to be regarded as the cornerstone of the Bill of Rights.

The right of free association is now under severe attack in several of the Southern states. The attack is directed primarily against the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, in retaliation for its effective work in breaking down bias and segregation.

The severity of the attack and the violence it does to American constitutional guarantees is being overlooked these days as the Great Debate over civil rights continues in the U. S. Senate.

Those who are concerned with civil liberties, as well as civil rights, are, therefore, indebted to the American Jewish Congress for compiling all the available data in a booklet entitled, "Assault Upon Freedom of Association."

The story begins in the Spring of 1956. The Attorney General of Alabama started a lawsuit against the NAACP. He charged it with failure, as an out-of-state organization, to register a copy of its Certificate of Incorporation and with having broken other Alabama laws..

Of course, what he was really concerned about was the NAACP's work in the Autherine Lucy case and later in the Montgomery bus boycott. The organization was found guilty of contempt (without a jury trial) and fined $100,000.

From Alabama the efforts to "get" the NAACP spread through the South. In January, 1957 the Arkansas legislature passed two

It has been said that time takes care of all things, but a good shove in the right direction at the right time can work wonders, and a good laugh will sometimes bring people to their senses when all else has failed. Scientific propagation of larger, smarter and faster Catfish become the order of the day, and now as everyone can see Little Crawfish are becoming very scarce.

The greatest damage to the people, to date, has been the loss of our Public School System. No doubt, the supreme intelligence can work out a secret method of brain washing whereby our unsuspecting youth can be taught the language of the talking snake and the braying jackass. However, this does not mean that our Public Schools were perfect, but that was not the fault of the Public School System in itself. One of our great sciences has hardly been touched upon, and when the subject is approached in most cases, it is with a fixed desire to destroy rather than to comprehend it.

Many people are satisfied with the early ideas of man when he was but little better than a savage. Such people are thousands of years behind modern science, and to them half the world has no meaning.

"To gull the mob and keep them under, The Ancients told their tales of wonder. A pious fraud, a holy blunder, a rainbow sign, an earthquake, or a blast of thunder were hald divine." (Robert Burns).

Those who have been taught incorrect surmises about the beginnings of the earth and of man are handicapped at the start by enemies, in the shape of preconceived ideas, which contest every approach of truth and constitute a far more formidable barrier than mere ignorance. So long, however, as false explantions of the world are deemed good enough for children, such enemies will drag the human race in captive chains.

Bordering on Fascism, the qualification to vote law is a disgrace to the American way and an insult to intelligence.

"Whom the Gods would destroy they first make mad."

Only a few years back there was made under an act of the Legislature and at the expense and vote of the people a law to allow the Clergy to vote under conditions granted no other qualified citizens. Anyone with brat brains knows that this is unconstitutional and the purpose could be only to gain votes. This lowly person did not even go to the polls.

The dominating fact at present is that the world of tradition is tumbling. A new world with new problems has unfolded itself before us. Whether we are ready or not is beside the question — we must accept the challenge No crawfishing — either extinction or "Evolution" is the law of nature.

Civilizations, like nations, and nations like individuals, cherish and feed on illusions. But illusions can be harmful. More, they can be dangerous. And if used as a foundation for a harsh reality, they can prove fatal. Reality is the sire of concrete situations and concrete situations need concrete solutions.

The greatest treason is not treason against governments but against human beings. Treason against the people is committed in many diverse ways. Common to all of them is the fierce determination of a privileged minority to retain their power and increase their advantages at the expense and suffering of the great majority. Treason against the people is not a new phenomenon in the world. Its dark thread runs through the pattern of all recorded history.

"When I, the People, learn to remember, when I, the People, use the lessons of yesterday and no longer forget who robbed me last year, who played me for a fool — then there will be no speaker in all the world say the name: "The People", with any fleck of sneer in his voice or any far-off smile of derision. The mob — the crowd — the mass — will arrive then." (Carl Sandburg.)

Democracy means that people respect the rights of others, including the right to be different. Liberty of thought is a mockery if liberty of speech, and action is denied. A man's opinions are no better than his information but errors of opinion may be tolerated if reason is left free to combat them.

Only dictatorships want everybody to think and act the same.

Abraham Lincoln said — "The man who will not investigate both sides of a question is dishonest." and it was Thomas Paine who said "It is error alone, and not truth that shrinks from inquiry."

The World Of Nature

By John M. Frazier

It is probable that the majority of species of green plants on the earth are subject to galls. In the higher forms of seed bearing plants, all parts of the plant as roots, stems, leaves, flowers, and fruits are subject to them.

Galls are abnormal growths of cells in he various types of tissues in the plant's body. Like all other phenomena, there is a natural cause. There are several different types of organisms that may produce galls on plants. They include bacteria, larger fungi, slime molds, nematode worms, and larvae of insects.

The fact that plants have galls has been known to man since early times, but he still knows little about the exact cause and manner of their development. While a fe wgalls are of some economic value, there is not enough commercial use to justify the extensive research that would be carried on to learn the whole story.

from early spring when green leaves begin to appear until late fall when the last green leaves fall from the trees and frost kills the habaceous plants.

The Lepidoptera, the scally-winged order to which butterflies and moths belong, has two genera that produce galls.

The Diptera, the order to which true flies, gnats, midges, and mosquitoes belong, has many genera that have gall formers. Since all galls are harmful to plants, much damage is done to some of aur most valuable crops by this group. The damage done to wheat by the Hessian fly is an example. Millions of dollars worth of wheat is destroyed by this introduced species of fly each year.

The Hymenoptera, the order of the ants, bees, wasps, and their related forms, contains the sawflies. These insects are called sawflies because the adults have saw-like structures on their ovipositors for cutting into the leaves for depositing eggs. bills designed to "frustrate" anti-segregation activity. They were signed by Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

Although Faubus is considered a liberal on many issues, his liberalism was not apparent this time. Winthrop Rockefeller, who is very powerful in Arkansas politics, warned Faubus that the state anti-NAACP laws "would set up what you might call an Arkansas gestapo. No organization would be safe from embarrassment of an investigation and behind closed doors, too."

This is what has happened in other states:

FLORIDA — The Governor was given new "emergency" authority under which he could cancel a peaceful NAACP meeting called to discuss school integration.

Georgia — The attack here has been via tax statutes. Although incorporated as a non-profit organization, Georgia Revenue agents raided the NAACP's office, demanded all records, including membership lists, presumably to find out if the organization "owed any state taxes."

LOUISIANA — The NAACP was accused of failing to register under a 1924 law that applies to "fraternal, patriotic, charitable, benevolent, literary, scientific, athletic, military or social organizations." The law has never been invoked against the KKK.

MISSISSIPPI — The Legislature established a 12-man State Sovereignty Commission which Gov. Coleman said would "enable us during the next two years to maintain a successful fight for preserving separation of the races in this state." It's budget is $250,000.

In time spast, galls have had a place in the thinking and behavior of man. Since they knew little or nothing of the natural processes in the development of galls hey rrived at many erroneous conclusions about them and their effect on human effects. They believed coming events could be predicted by observing whether galls contained flies, spiders, or worms.

The Roman naturalist, Pliny the Elder who wrote of natural history of his time, thought galls came in a night. As late as the seventeenth century Redi believed a lant had a "vegetable soul" which produced galls with their eggs, larvae, and adult animal life. At the same time the plants could produce flowers, fruis, and seeds of its own species.

The great majority of galls seem to be produced by insects or other closely allied forms in the phylum arthropoda. Some forms seem to be specific, that is, a given species of animal lays its agg or eggs only on certain species of plants. Still other species of animal may parasitize not only all species in a genus, but may use plants over a wide range of families.

There are three genera of mites — Acarus, Eryophyes, and Phyllocoptes—which cause galls.

There are four orders of insects which have gall producing genera. In the Order Homoptera there are at least 10 genera in the family Aphididae which produce them. This is the familiar group of small, soft-bodied insects known as aphids or plant lice. They are seen everywhere and mosquitoes belong, has many genera that have gall formers. Since all galls are harmful to plants, much damage is done to some of aur most valuable crops by this group. The damage done to wheat by the Hessian fly is an example. Millions of dollars worth of wheat is destroyed by this introduced species of fly each year.

Galls Protect Insects

Of the thousands of kinds of galls on plants, each one will have from one to several larvae of insects present. Each different kind of gall has a different species of insect in it. By this it is possible to determine the kind of insect by the kind of gall formed.

The adult insect lays the eggs in the art of the plant required for food for the larvae. The normal plant tissue usually does not respond until the eggs hatch.

Apparently the larva begins eating and excreting substances that have a profound effect on the surrounding plant cells. The cells are stimulated to grow into the abnormal shapes that are called galls.

The insects continue to live in the galls where they have all the necessities of life and are protected from outside harm.

Use and Damage

Galls from oak trees are rich in tannin. This is a compound of tannic acid used in the tanning of leather. Peasants of Italy, Iran, Cyprus, Asia Minor and Syria gather the galls used in commerce.

The Smyma fig which does not produce pollen itself, depends on the gall producing insect to pollenate it.

It is said that one tenth of the total wheat crop in the United States and Canada is destroyed each year by Hessian flies. In some areas the destruction goes as high as 30 to 50 per cent.

MISSISSIPPI — The Legislature established a 12-man State Sovereignty Commission which Gov. Coleman said would "enable us during the next two years to maintain a successful fight for preserving separation of the races in this state." It's budget is $250,000.

THE SCAPEGOAT — Few Southern politicians ever blame themselves or Dixie's "know-nothings" for racial tensions. It's all the doing of those "outside agitators."

In this connection we are inclined to agree with the Rev. Eugene C. Blake, president of the National Council of Churches of Christ:

"No one who knows the facts can blame the NAACP for the racial problems in our country or think of this organization as made up of extremists of one sort to be set opposite the extremists on the other side who make up the White Citizens Council and the Ku Klux Klan."

Information On Social Security

By Luther N. Davis

"What proofs do I have to have to get Social Security?" is one of the most frequently asked questions we get in the Social Security office here. It is especially important to women now that they may receive benefits at age 62 instead of 65. Knowing what proofs to submit saves time and speeds benefit payments.

As to proof of age, bring an old and reliable document. If you have it, bri3ng your birth certificate or baptismal record. If not, the family Bible or an old life insurance policy will do very well—in fact any document that is both old and reliable will be of help.

Women applying as widows, who have never filed as wives, should also bring some proof of their marriage. If the marriage certificate has been misplaced, you may obtain a certified copy of the marriage record from the county courthouse. In some instances, widows are also required to submit proof of age—so bring some proof along when they come in to file an application.

Anyone who has a problem on age or marriage proofs should telephone or write the Social Security Administration in Hattiesburg.

Game Receipts Show Increase

The Game and Fish Commission, a state agency which needn't worry about talk of budget cuts, took in $100,000.00 more in the year ending June 30 than in the previous year. Director Rex McRaney said the total for the year was $1,105,029.00. The Commission's activities are supported principally by sale of hunting and fishing licenses, which are on the increase. McRaney called a meeting of the 15 game warden supervisors and other staff members to review accomplishments of the past year and the program for 1958. Besides the game warden supervisors, those attending included game and fish biologists and managers of public hunting grounds.

"ME? I'm doing the wash!"

Nothing very surprising about that. Her electric washer and dryer are doing the job automatically. And at the same time her automatic electric range is cooking dinner . . . and her electric dishwasher is doing the lunch dishes.

The price for electricity to do these jobs? Just a few cents.

What else can you think of in your budget that does so much for so little?
